Diagnosing Corruption in Ethiopia Janelle Plummer, 2012-06-25 For decades, corruption in Ethiopia has only been discussed at the margins. Perhaps because many have not experienced corruption as a significant constraint to their lives and businesses, or perhaps because a culture of circumspection has dampened open dialogue, Ethiopia has neither seen the information flows nor the debate on corruption that most other countries have seen in recent years. This study attempts to fill this information gap. Conducted by the World Bank (with financial support from the UK, the Netherlands and Canada) in conjunction with the Federal Ethics and Anti-Corruption Commission of Ethiopia (FEACC), the study is an independent overview of corruption. It attempts to map the nature of corruption in eight sectors in the country. The studies focuses on three key objectives: (i) to develop sector frameworks that enable mapping of the potential areas of corruption on a sector-by-sector basis; (ii) to map the different forms, and types of corrupt practices in the selected sectors; and (iii) to consider the higher risk areas and identify appropriate sector or cross cutting responses for Government and other stakeholders. The sectors covered are health, education, water, justice, construction, land, telecommunications and mining. In designing the methodologies for undertaking the diagnostics, the sector experts developed approaches that most suited the sector and stakeholder context. However, a number of universal principles have guided the approach. One commonality in the methodology has been the effort to tap into the perceptions and knowledge of all stakeholders, be they politicians, senior government officials, private sector businessmen, civil society advocates or consumers of services. The diagnostics strongly suggest that, in Ethiopia, corrupt practice in the delivery of basic services is comparatively limited and is potentially much lower than other low-income countries. When viewed together, the findings of the study point towards an emerging pattern in sector level corruption, with interesting variations in the levels of corruption across the sectors studied.

Business Ethics Dr. Rupa Jajoo Gilda, 2020-06-18 This book is a part of the course by S.R.T.M University of Nanded. This book contains the course content for Business Ethics. Ethics is about determining value; it's deciding what's worth doing and what doesn't matter so much. Business ethics is the way we decide what kind of career to pursue, what choices we make on the job, which companies we want to work with, and what kind of economic world we want to live in and then leave behind for those coming after. There are no perfect answers to these questions, but there's a difference between thinking them through and winging it. The Business Ethics Workshop provides a framework for identifying, analyzing, and resolving ethical dilemmas encountered through working life.

Business Ethics J. S. Nelson, Lynn A. Stout, 2022 An authoritative and practical guide to business ethics, written in an accessible-question-and answer format In today's turbulent business climate, business ethics are more important than ever. Surveys of employees show that misconduct is on the rise. Cover stories reporting indictments, prosecutions, and penalties imposed for unethical business conduct appear almost daily. Legislatures pass requirements elevating the levels of punishment and their enforcement against corporations and individuals. Organizations face pressure to design and implement effective ethics and compliance programs. As a result, businesses and businesspeople are increasingly worried that their conduct might cross lines that put their wealth and reputations at risk. Business Ethics: What Everyone Needs to Know (R) explains what those lines are, how not to cross them, and what to do when they are crossed. Written for both businesspeople facing real-life dilemmas and students studying ethical questions, this succinct book uniquely surveys materials from moral philosophy, behavioral science, and corporate law, and shares practical advice. Experts J.S. Nelson and Lynn A. Stout cover a wide array of essential topics including the legal status of corporations, major ethical traps in modern business, negotiations, whistleblowing and liability, and best practices. Written in a short question-and-answer style, this resource provides engaging and readable introductions to the basic principles of business ethics, and an invaluable guide for dealing with ethical dilemmas.

Ethics in business has grown to be of increasing importance in the world of today, as companies have been placed in the moral spotlight by shareholders, consumers, employees and governments. The growing complexities of the global economy demand a broader and a deeper view of business ethics than that offered by current management approaches that focus on reforming corporate behaviour. Business Ethics places business ethics in a richer contextual setting, focusing on the challenges that businesses must now confront, and exploring how these issues can be met by a rethinking of business models, goals and strategies. Business Ethics is the ideal textbook for students taking business ethics modules at undergraduate, postgraduate and MBA levels.

Fair Trade Initiatives in the Ethiopian Coffee Market Maria Göhring, 2011-08-02 Bachelor Thesis from the year 2011 in the subject Business economics - Business Ethics, Corporate Ethics, grade: 1,0, Martin Luther University (Institut für Wirtschaftsethik), language: English, abstract: In public perception, Northern countries accumulate wealth at the costs of Southern countries. Therefore, Fair Trade has been born to abandon the unfairness within the North-South trade relationship due to globalization and to create fair rules for world trade. Coffee is hereby of symbolic character for the global Fair Trade movement and has still the largest share within the Fair Trade market. Furthermore, its origin lies in Ethiopia. Accordingly, it is the largest African coffee producer and still provides the original Arabica coffee bean that shows the greatest genetic pool in the world. Therefore, in the following paper Fair Trade in the Ethiopian coffee market will be analyzed from an economic ethics perspective applying the Ordonomic research approach. This is a rational choice analysis which looks on the interdependency of institutional rules and mind categories within the globalizing context. By using the three-tiered model, answers to three main questions will be given. The first concentrates on which dilemma structures are prevailing in the North-South trade relationship. The second focuses on conflicts which are present in public discourse and finally the third question asks for implications that are given for the rule-setting process and how Fair Trade works hereby as an instrument of New Governance. It will be shown that moral commitments initiated by Fair Trade help to overcome prisoner dilemmas and the deficit rule-framework in the global coffee market. New Governance and Global Corporate Citizenship are thereby complementary. Finally, Fair Trade will be examined with regard to its sustainability according to the three ESG criteria of sustainability. The focus is hereby set on success as well as challenges and deficits FairTrade faces nowadays and in
